Staten Island Ferry could be cash cow for the city

Transportation. A new report that was released on Wednesday by the Independent Budget Office says that a $4 fee to ride on the Staten Island Ferry for tourists and New Yorkers who don't live or work in the borough would net the city millions of dollars in cash. PAGE 02

Denim debut

C.Wonder Flatiron

Chris Burch's preppy emporium opened the doors to its latest location in the Flatiron District. But that's not all it's celebrating. This week, the brand launched a premium denim collection, C.Denim, which comes in three signature styles: Skinny, Curvy and Skinny Ankle, and ranges in price from $118-$128. 155 Fifth Ave., 212-260-6130

Of Mercer

Put away the shorts suit and strappy dresses you were getting away with at work during the summer; it's time to get professional for fall. Of Mercer — the online brand specializing in fashionable office-appropriate clothes — is opening a pop-up shop in Nolita. But this is no buttoned-up affair. Expect plenty of fun events, like a bellini and braid bar on Saturday. Bonus: Everything is under $250.

Double trouble

Not only has Band of Outsiders opened its first East Coast location in Soho, but the flagship houses the newest outpost of Momofuku Milk Bar. Expect to be distracted from the boyish blazers and preppy button-downs by Christina Tosi's classic Crack Pie Cookies, Cake Ball Truffles, Cereal Milk and — exclusive to Soho — Salty Pistachio soft serve. For those limited-edition hounds, there'll be Band of Outsiders-inspired baked goods on special days. 72 Wooster St.

The NYC Big Flea Market

Paris and London aren't the only big cities boasting flea markets. Score one-of-a-kind finds at NYC's largest indoor flea market with more than 600 vendors exhibiting furniture, estate jewelry, fine art, vintage wares and more.

Bottega Organica

At Bottega Organica, nature meets science. Geneticist Dr. Andrea Alimonti and his team joined forces with neurologist Paolo Manfredi to create a botanical-based skin care line scientifically proven to fight aging. Alimonti's discoveries — the natural ingredients that slow cell aging — and pure olive oil from Manfredi's family farm in Liguria, Italy, are bottled into these highly effective organic oils, serums, balms and soaps. You can try the line at their new store — which, of course, was built using reclaimed wood, recycled materials and vegetable based-paint. 117 Christopher St. 212-243-3537

Darling

Iconic West Village boutique Darling — housed in a charming two-story space complete with enchanting garden

— just underwent a complete revamp. New owners Donna Jean Baxter and Raquelle Stiefel, who had their own clothing line in the boutique for the past 11 years, designed a namesake label exclusively for the store featuring customer favorites along with an e-commerce site. 1 Horatio St. 646-226-6069

Sandro Homme Workshop

Sandro Homme's temporary retail space — the first stand-alone location dedicated to the Parisian brand — houses the fall-winter collection along with an evolving art studio. Every month through the end of the year, an emerging contemporary artist will create a live installation for shoppers to experience as they browse the clothes. 145 Spring St. 212-775-8220
